Sep 17, 2014 .Q: Any built-in way to show '?' character in HTML content (neither in /nor in other tags)? In all HTML5 input elements, I want to show a? question mark character instead of display the actual character. It is not a required character, so showing nothing will also work. I want to know the best way to do it. I know about tag but it doesn't work on all browsers - IE and Firefox, but it works on Chrome. So, What is the best way to do this? A: Since HTML5, there is the placeholder attribute which could be used for this purpose: In HTML5, the input element also has a placeholder attribute which allows to specify a default value for a textbox, as you would see in the screenshot below. This attribute is not limited to input type text elements. A: This was the best solution that I came up with: ? And CSS class: .required-indicator-char { font-size: 15px; color: #000; } .required-indicator-char:before { content: "\2600"; } As stated, it is a solution similar to marquee tag. A: You can't use marquee tag or any other fancy functionality. But you can use the HTML5 placeholder attribute. The placeholder attribute, designed to let the
